Sabrient Ratings

Sabrient's Buy/Hold/Sell ratings are based on a combination of dynamic filters that determine which attributes of a stock are most predictive in the prevailing market and which stocks best reflect those attributes but are not yet rewarded.

Sabrient starts with an "extraction" process that uses the best performing filters to identify stocks having certain compelling attributes currently sought by the market. Then, a composite scoring process uses a weighted average of several key scores to quantify the relative likelihood of upside or downside price action. As a result, the Buy/Hold/Sell rating may, in certain cases, seem inconsistent with a simple average of the scores cited in this analysis.

A BUY rating means the stock is expected to outperform its relevant benchmark substantially over the next 6 months. A SELL rating means the stock is expected to underperform its relevant benchmark substantially over the next 6 months. A HOLD rating means the stock is expected to perform in line with its relevant benchmark over the next 6 months.

If a stock is rated HOLD, the investor should review the stock's history of Sabrient ratings to see if it has recently changed to HOLD from BUY or SELL. If so, this indicates one of the following: (1) there has been a significant change in the stock's fundamentals, (2) the stock is already appropriately rewarded or punished by the market, or (3) there simply has been some recent price consolidation that warrants attention. A reading of Sabrient's analysis should identify which it is.

Sabrient Analysis

ALGT receives a Strong Buy rating for its excellent momentum and value attributes, two important predictors of upside potential.

- Momentum: ALGT is a top performer with respect to momentum, as evidenced by a Sabrient Momentum Score of 97.9. Stocks with high momentum scores typically continue their bullish price behavior at least in the very short term. The score reflects price, earnings, and group momentum.
- Value: Also, a score of 80.4 for the exacting Sabrient Value Score indicates that ALGT may be undervalued at its current price.
- Growth: A score of 79.1 for the Sabrient Growth Score suggests that ALGT has good growth potential.
- Timeliness: ALGT has a Sabrient Timeliness Score of 90.3. This measures technical strength based on short-term and long-term price performance and long-term group strength.

Current Sabrient Scores Compared with Industry and Relevant Benchmark

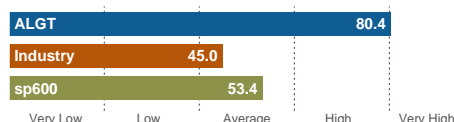

These Sabrient scores compare various aspects of ALLEGiant TRAVEL CO with its industry and relevant benchmarks. The scores are percentile rankings from 0 to 99.9. Higher scores are better. We use a weighted average of several key scores to quantify the relative likelihood of upside or downside price action. Therefore, the Sabrient rating may seem inconsistent with a simple average of the scores cited in this analysis.

Growth Score: 79.1

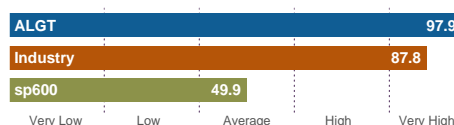

The Sabrient Growth Score reflects a company's historical and projected earnings growth, revenue and sales growth, projected cash flow, analyst activity, and changes in earnings estimates, each over various time periods. The higher the score, the better the combined performance of these key measures. With a Sabrient Growth Score of 79.1, Allegiant is considerably higher than the average of its industry group, which has a Sabrient Growth Score of 58.2.

Value Score: 80.4

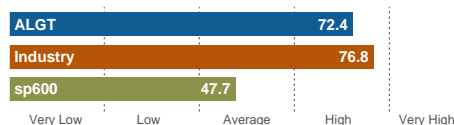

The Sabrient Value Score measures the relationship between a company's stock price and its intrinsic value, as indicated by earnings and balance sheet attributes, with an emphasis on earnings. Also considered are cash flow measures and fundamental valuation ratios. With a Sabrient Value Score of 80.4, Allegiant is substantially higher than the average of its industry group, which has a Sabrient Value Score of 45.0.

Momentum Score: 97.9

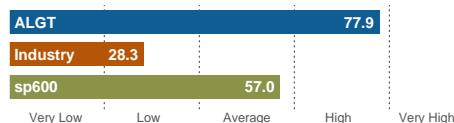

The Sabrient Momentum Score measures a company's earnings and price momentum, evenly weighted, and augmented by group strength, money flow, and relative volume. Core technical factors include current price relative to periodic highs and moving averages. With a Sabrient Momentum Score of 97.9, Allegiant is moderately higher than the average of its industry group, which carries a Sabrient Momentum Score of 87.8.

Earnings Score: 72.4

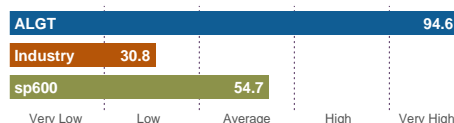

The Sabrient Earnings Score assesses a company's overall earnings performance and projected outlook. Time periods include an average look-back of three years with an emphasis on the past four quarters and a forward look of one to five years. With a Sabrient Earnings Score of 72.4, Allegiant is marginally lower than the average of its industry group, which has a Sabrient Earnings Score of 76.8.

Balance Sheet Score: 77.9

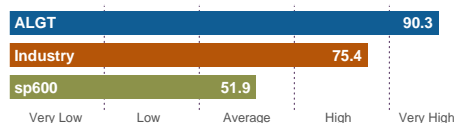

The Sabrient Balance Sheet Score measures a company's liquidity and debt issues, as well as receivables and inventory quality. This score is used to assess relative risk associated with a stock: the lower the score, most likely the higher the inherent risk. With a Sabrient Balance Sheet Score of 77.9, Allegiant is significantly higher than the average of its industry group, which carries a Sabrient Balance Sheet Score of 28.3.

Fundamental Score: 94.6

The Sabrient Fundamental Score is the broad measure of a company's financial health, including its balance sheet, cash flow, revenue, and earnings quality. With a Sabrient Fundamental Score of 94.6, Allegiant is dramatically higher than the average of its industry group, which carries a Sabrient Fundamental Score of 30.8.

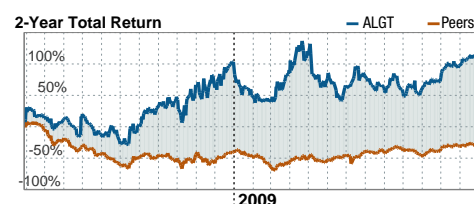

Timeliness Score: 90.3

The Sabrient Timeliness Score is an assessment of a stock's short and long-term price strength as determined by various chart-based indicators and measures of group momentum and relative price performance. With a Sabrient Timeliness Score of 90.3, Allegiant is moderately higher than the average of its industry group, which carries a Sabrient Timeliness Score of 75.4.

- Best Performing Filters: To determine the likelihood of near-term performance, Sabrient builds and backtests "Smart Filters" to establish which caps, styles and attributes are drawing a premium in today's market. Currently, the three most predictive filters for the relevant segment are:

Cash Flow vs. EPS Filter: The Cash Flow vs. EPS Filter measures short-term cash flow and free cash flow growth against short-term revenue growth and earnings consistency. The filter outperformed its mid-cap benchmark by a substantial margin over the past three months. ALGT scores 74.4 for this filter.

Group Momentum Filter: The Group Momentum Filter measures industry group performance in multiple periods with an emphasis on the last three months and serves as a proxy for broader market sentiment toward a group or niche. Backtesting shows that the filter has earned a significant premium to its mid-cap benchmark over the past three months. ALGT scores 92.6 for this filter.

Triple Rank Filter: The Triple Rank Filter considers earnings momentum, price momentum and group momentum, along with a factor that measures the flow of money into a stock. The filter has significantly outperformed its mid-cap benchmark during the last 90 days. ALGT scores 99.4 for this filter.

In summary, ALGT's Strong Buy rating is based on a profile of forward-looking metrics which show this stock could significantly outperform the broader markets.

WHO LET THE BEARS OUT?

By David Brown, Chief Market Strategist

(January 25, 2010)

Perhaps it was the new senator from Massachusetts who let the bears out, but I suppose it was a bit more than that. When the week began on Tuesday, after the Martin Luther King holiday, the bulls were grazing happily on GARP stocks, as contented as California cows. But then somebody opened that gate, and the bears roared through and the bulls ran for cover.

It wasn't exactly a massacre, but it was far from pretty. Consider that the best style/cap, Small-cap Value, was down 4.3% and the worst, Large-cap Value, was down 5.2%. Obviously, all style/caps were ravaged, and the week's carnage wiped out everything we had accomplished since Santa Claus came in December.

If Scott Brown didn't actually open the gate, the uncertainty caused by his election had something to do with it, along with China threatening to tighten lending standards and the U.S. economic indicators that were released last week. Those were a mixed bag. The Philly Fed (15.2 vs. 18 expected) and the LEI (1.1 vs. 0.7 expected) were okay, but initial jobless claims were worse than expected (482K vs. 440K expected) and the PPI could be taken either way.

Corporate earnings were also mixed. There were a number of major disappointments -- Bank of America (BAC), Citigroup (C), Morgan Stanley (MS), TD Ameritrade (AMTD) and Schwab (SCHW) -- as well as several major companies with excellent quarters -- Wells Fargo (WFC), eBay (EBAY), Northern Trust (NTRS), and Parker Hannifin (PH). But the bottom line is that uncertainty reigned, and the bears loved it.

This morning, the landscape changed again. Even though existing home sales came in worse than expected, falling 16.7% in December, the "Manic Monday" effect seems to have come into play. Described by Graham Summers in his article "The Formula Behind This Market Rally, In Simple Terms," this theory says that Mondays -- or the first market day of the week -- are generally bullish, spurred on by positive futures over the weekend and the Fed pumping up the money supply. Perhaps we experienced a Manic Monday today, because the S&P500 was up 0.46%. Also worth noting, after the close today (Monday), Apple (AAPL) reported incredible numbers, blowing away all estimates, and as I write this it is all over the board in afterhours trading.

Sectors. Before we look ahead, we should take a look back at last week, as painful as it is. All sectors were negative, with Materials the worst (-9%) just as projected by our SectorCast rankings. By the way, to see just how sweeping the damage was last week, the two worst industries were Metals & Mining, losing almost 11% for the week, and the totally unrelated Diversified Financial Services, down 10.7%.

Looking ahead, Telecom leads the way, but surprisingly, Financials leaped from last place to a strong second in the current SectorCast. Despite the terrific spanking given the large banks by the President last week, the great majority of regional banks escaped his wrath and did quite well. Healthcare rounds out the top three forward-looking sectors, while Materials remains at the bottom along with Consumer Discretionary and Industrials.

It is difficult to know exactly where to turn this week, given this changing landscape. But despite today's positive tone, I recommend extreme caution, sticking with conservatively priced stocks in the better sectors and appropriate hedges to protect the downside.

About Sabrient

Sabrient Systems is an independent research firm providing statistical analysis of a company's fundamental data to investment professionals. We use a computer-driven, quantitative methodology to identify stocks that appear poised to outperform or underperform the market.

The Sabrient methodology was developed by an experienced research team led by David Brown, a former NASA scientist and retired CEO of Telescan and designer of its premier stock search program, ProSearch. The research team employs a scientific approach to the creation and testing of multi-factor filters. Each filter targets a key area of traditional stock analysis, including value, growth, momentum, fundamentals, earnings, balance sheet, and group strength. Using an adaptive process, filters are continually tested and monitored to ensure that only the best performing filters are at work.

Sabrient's ratings begin with an extraction process in which each of the few best-performing filters scans the universe of equities to identify stocks having certain compelling attributes sought, but not sufficiently rewarded, by the current market. Then, a composite scoring system employs a broader set of "weighting" filters to rank the extracted stocks. To support individual investors, Sabrient uses the same sophisticated methodology to provide individual stock reports on a universe of approximately 5,600 stocks.

Sabrient regularly tests the performance of its stock selections, using its primary list of published rankings and statistical techniques it believes appropriate. These recommendations have consistently outperformed relevant benchmarks across a broad range of investing styles, market caps, time frames and market conditions, demonstrating the robustness of Sabrient's proprietary methodology. While past performance is no guarantee of future results, Sabrient believes it can maintain its strong performance through its rigorous, scientific approach to filter construction and ongoing backtesting within a dynamic and adaptive composite scoring system.
